ABOUT THE PROJECT

ARROWTOWN HOUSE BY KERR RITCHIE ARCHITECTS

In accordance with local requirements, the bulk of the house was broken up into three shed-like volumes to enable it to nestle more discreetly on its site. "It was a conscious decision, both environmentally and aesthetically, to avoid building an 'overweight' house," Bronwen Kerr says.

The BMW Efficient Dynamics Sustainability Award celebrates innovation and responsible use of resources in sustainable home design, something the owners and designers of this home took seriously from the start.

Pete and Bronwen's aim (in accordance with Arrowtown's design guidelines aimed at protecting the unique character of the village) was to make the already small house appear even smaller by making it resemble a collection of sheds, an interconnected arrangement of three weatherboard-clad forms that step gradually down its westward-leaning slope.
